DEVOTION TO RULER

KCREANS SHOW HIGH DEGREE OF PATRIOTISM.

Had Decided Freely to Give Their Lives to Warn Emperor of What They Considered Grave Danger.

Out of Korea comes a story of the fanatical devotion shown to the shad-ow emperor of the land by those of his subjects who still resent the rule of the Japanese and view each move of their virtual masters with deep suspicton. In this instance several pawere willing to let themselves be run over by a railroad train if only his majesty might be warned by their death that he was flying into the trap set for his feet by Prince Ito.

A month ago the emperor announced that he was going to leave Secul and take a trip to Fusan, the most casterly effer of the previously ended.

easterly city of the peninsula and wholly a Japanese settlement. This was an unprecedented thing for the emperor to do, since for countless generations Korean kings and emperors had been content to sit in the hall of congratulations in the Mulberry palace at Secul and let subjects from other parts of the land come to them to pay homage. Despite the protests of the patriots Prince Ito, who was engineer-patriots Frince ito, who was engineering the trip, ruled and the emperor set out over the Seoul-Fusan railway to visit the seaport at the other terminal.

It became known by the Koreans along the route that the Japanese battleship Azuma was to anchor in the harbor of Fusan and that a part of the welcoming ceremonies that were to welcoming ceremonies that were to occur in Fusan was to be a luncheon to the emperor on board the ship. Immediately the rumor grew to the conviction that as soon as Prince Ito had the emperor safely on the Azuma's There deck anchor would be holsted and the last of the line of Korean rulers would be whisked off to Japan, there to die steak. in a dungeon.

Perhaps the simple Koreans had some justification for believing that the crafty resident-general would like te execute a coup like that; certainly the hand of the Japanese had made such startling moves on the imperial chess board at Seoul that even a duplication of the murder that was done in the Mulberry palace some years ago at the instance of a Japanese minister would not seem improbable to the Koreans.

At any rate the emperor had his luncheon on board the battleship in Fusan harbor and was put safely back on his own territory again. During the course of the luncheon Prince Ito made conversation by telling the pupet ruler that he had learned that at Taiku, one of the large towns on the line of the railway, a party of patriots, convinced that the emperor was going to his doom, had determined was going to his doom, had determined was going to his doom, had determined to lay themselves on the rails as his train approached the station. They believed that by this act of sacrifice their monarch might be made to see that he was approaching immediate

Old New England graveyards are not the only ones which contain curious epitaphs. The old-time dweller of Maine who "died of a falling tree," as his headstone asserts, had a fellow in misfortune in far-off Australia, as is shown by W. A. Baillie-Grohman's "The Tyrol and the Tyrolese."

CEREMONIES OF PLOW MONDAY.

Quaint Observances That Were Once JEST OF THE NATURE FAKER.

Plowing operations in England do not commence, as a rule, till the first Monday after January 12, and for that reason it is known as Plow Monday, states an Engilsh writer. For centuries the formal inauguration of the plowing season has taken place on this day, and even now its quaint observances are still kept up in some part or other of the world.

even now its quaint observances are still kept up in some part or other of the world.

Before the plous ancestors of the present generation would begin to cultivate the ground, in Catholic times, they would attend a special service for the dedication of the plow. At this service the plowmen kept lights burning before certain images in churches, to obtain a blessing upon their work; and they were accustomed, on this day, to go about in procession, gathering money for the support of these "plow lights," as they were called.

After the Reformation the religious form of the festival changed. The peasantry used to arrange big processions and collect money, which was afterward spent in conviviality in the public house. It assumed quite a gay affair. A plowman used to dress himself up with ribbons and other gaudy decorations, as the "Fool Plow."

Thirty or forty companions, wearing their shirts over their jackets, and their shoulders and hats ablaze with highly-colored ribbons, used to draw the plow in state through the village, the side of the bottom of the state of the bottom of the seas, "whitefish, biuefish, weakfish, perch..."

Any who refused to contribute to the funds had their gardens plowed up. All the demonstrators would go through the village with dancing and singing. The whole scene was one of excited merriment.

Except in a few local instances these quaint observances have passed away, their places being taken by the more serious occupation of plowing competi-tions. In the north of England and in Scotland these contests are very popu

Kingfish Surprised Campers

A singular incident occurred one day last week at Johns Pass. Mr. and Mrs. Homer M. Mohr of Lealman and a friend were camping there. While Mr. Mohr was cooking dinner a big king-fish jumped out of the water on to the beach, nearly upactting a kettle which was on the fire. All made a grab for was on the fire. All made a grab for it and took it up to a higher place on the beach to prevent its escape. The kingfish was four feet long and weighed a little over fifty pounds. There is no reason to doubt the story, for Mr. Mohr took the fish home and he and his friends feasted on kingfish steek.

Though fish have been belown to Though his have been belown to throw themselves on Florida beaches when pursued by sharks or porpoises, Mr. Mohr's experience is unique only in the fact that the kingfish might be said to have thrown itself at the campers.-Petersburg (Fla.) Times.

The Modern Physics of Epicurus. Let us ask ourselves if, in our theories of atoms and electrons, we have really advanced beyond the ideas of the ancients. Democritus certainly advanced a theory of atoms, and Epi curus taught that an infinite number of atoms, existing from all eternity in infinite space, continually in motion, were the elements of that matter of which the universe is composed. It is true that our modern theory of atoms at first sight, seems to resemble close ly that of these two philosophers; for in the air of a room we suppose bil-lions of atoms; we believe in the con-tinuity of matter, and therefore that all matter is ultimately made up of but the modern theory is supported by measurements of weight, magni-tude and speed.—Prof. John Trow-bridge, in Atlantic.

Defense of Canned Products.

That foods properly canned do not deteriorate with age was a statement made at a dinner of canners in Chicago a few days ago. "Suppose a customer desired a can of corn on February 22, 1920," said one of the speakers, "and was given corn canned in 1909. It would be rejected with a demand for 'something fresher,' and, although the 1909 article would be found as fresh as that of 1920 it would be lost. TREE HOUSES OF THE PAPUANS. Cool and Clean, But Not Built for Somnambulists.

The famous tree houses of Papus are rapidly disappearing before the march of civilization and settlement in the colony.

The tree house—a neat and well built habitation, placed at an enormous height among the branches of a forest tree and reached only by a swinging ladder—was primarily in-tended as a refuge from enemies. Now, however, that the government has brought the wild tribes under control the native prefers to live in a house that demands less skill in construc-

These tree houses are exceedingly cool, clean and picturesque, with the roofs of native made thatch and walls and floors of wattled boughs.
